

Theresa Grattan

Theresa graduated from Michigan State University with a Bachelors Degree in Fisheries & Wildlife Management.

She began her career as a summer park interpreter working for the Michigan DNR at Holland State Park. She stayed in Holland and worked at a city-run nature center for two years as a naturalist.

Since then she has worked for the DNR at various state parks in southeast Michigan and most recently as the new park interpreter at Tahquamenon Falls.

She has worked on research projects including PCB contamination in great horned owls, and nesting behavior of house wrens. Her primary experience and expertise is in outdoor interpretation.
